The Nineteen Thirty-Eight Kaleidoscope Presents A pictorial
SINCE 1917 college has changed from a cultural luxury for few to a mental necessity for many. Higher education, indeed, has experienced a double revolution, bringing ten-fold expansion of enrollment and a re-woven pattern of attitudes toward learning and morals. It was the biting realities of depression that finally destroyed the intellectual fearfulness of Victorianism and the shallow cynicism of the Jazz Age.

Predominating outlook of the million-odd undergraduates, who are guinea pigs for the world’s greatest experiment in mass education, is broad-minded, relaxed, and inquiring. The scholarly retreat has been succeeded by an institution with a distinctive four-year design for living. Variety, informality and individuality have at last been recognized as healthful characteristics of American student life.

Capturing the democratic spirit of modern education is the aim of the 1938 KALEIDOSCOPE. Thus we present, not merely a succession of mechanically arranged groups, but a photographic account of Middlebury life as it is lived day by day.
UNDERGRADUATES evolved their democratic and pleasantly ungilded design for living several years ago. Many annuals, however, though purporting to be accurate presentations of a college year, have lagged far behind the radically changed attitudes of their readers. Hence the yearbook which seeks for the informal and many-sided spirit of modern education must be revolutionized in layout, arrangement and pictorial policy.

The KALEIDOSCOPE of 1938 attempts to present the panoramic, multi-shaded view of Middlebury life which its name connotes. A seasonal theme has been used to establish living continuity, informality, emphasized to lend realism. Color and varied layouts give vitality. Above all a college year from first chapel to commencement has been recorded by the pictorial, not the verbal method.

Like all things new, the 1938 KALEIDOSCOPE has flaws. Yet, if it conveys by the printed page something of the spirit that is Middlebury, it will have been, for the editors at least, a satisfying success.

SECTION I

OF A YEAR AT MIDDLEBURY
PAINTER HALL was Middlebury's first dormitory, - the embryo of a beautiful and still growing campus. It is fitting, therefore, that its picture be used for introducing a section devoted to those things which are fundamentals of the whole concept that is college.

These cornerstones of undergraduate life may be classified as the faculty, the classes, and the Greek-letter societies. In one sense, their general undertakings change little from season to season, or year to year. Yet even here, there is a field for story-telling by photography.

Cleaner rushing, less clanish fraternal feelings, and closer national Greek-letter relationships were predominant aims of the Interfraternity Council during the past two semesters.

Most important rushing reform was a progressive fine against signing more prospects than quota-limit. This replaced a flat, three-hundred-dollar payment for over-pledging which tempted wholesale rushing, on theory that large membership more than counter-balanced the financial forfeit. Other rules deferred pledging to late November and legalized maintenance of fifteen-member groups in each class.

To foster more friendly intramural spirit, the Council adopted an exchange-dinner plan. Every Wednesday two members from each fraternity dined at another house. Several groups also were quite successful in initiating joint smokers.

Following a policy initiated several years ago, a representative was sent to the National Interfraternity Conference in New York City. Other Council activities included discussion about issuing a joint rushing bulletin and investigation concerning feasibility of cooperative fraternity buying.
Formed to improve intersorority relationships, the Panhellenic Association was concerned this year, as always, with enactment and enforcement of rushing rules.

Chief change from past seasons was a pledge-quota increased from eight to nine because of an unusually large entering class. Another ruling eliminated the so-called "silence period" by permitting sorority women to address prospective members before acceptance of bids. A third innovation provided three party-days each rushing week but allowed only two receptions daily.

Other activities ran in customary channels. The double-preferential system of rushee and sorority choice-lists was retained, with Professor Freeman as arbiter. Dorothy J. Briggs '39 was granted the annual Panhellenic scholarship for all-round accomplishments.

Besides undergraduate members, the Association contains one alumnae delegate from each sorority. These representatives were: Mrs. Robert Cartmell, ΔΔΔ; Mrs. Reginald L. Cook, KΚΓ; Miss Marion Holmes, ΨΜ; Mrs. H. Wright Caswell, ΠΠΦ; Mrs. Nell Adams, ΣΚ.

Features . . .
SUNLIT Golden sheaves beneath cloud-cameoed azure skies are Indian Summer’s calm but colorful prelude to the falling leaves and darkening earth of Autumn. They foreshadow correctly the restless but age-mellowed season of Harvest and Thanksgiving, ripened pumpkins amidst weather-bleached stalks, early frosts and fattened turkeys.

With this overtone of wines and browns, of smoke-hazed days and clear crisp nights, college life in October and November harmonizes closely. No months are more filled with activity, variety and healthful spirit. Registration, Rushing and Homecoming act as exciting interludes in a succession of football contests and Sunday hikes. Playing bands, shouting cheerleaders and bustling classrooms become distinguishing units of collegians’ concept of Fall. It is fitting, therefore, that certain events, organizations and athletics be recorded in a section devoted solely to happenings of Autumn.

SEASON ACTIVITIES

Annual trips to Snake Mountain and Lake Pleiad connect the Mountain Club inseparably with autumn, for fall’s swirling leaves and open fires provide the lures which attract huge membership. Expanding activity, however, has kept it prominent year-round and gained it the sobriquet of “most worthwhile undergraduate organization.”

Following slight administrative changes in May, 1936, the club concentrated on unusual trips and cooperation with other outing groups. “Mystery hikes” to indefinite goals and explorations of unscaled peaks gave the itinerary added variety, while participation in I. O. C. A. gatherings and a joint Middlebury-Vermont snow tour lent broader understanding of common outdoor problems.

"Freshman Bible" Distribution and Published primarily to acquaint freshmen with Middlebury's personalities, traditions and regulations, the Handbook is distributed during registration. A four-member junior staff compiles and edits the booklet during summer vacation.

Since statistical tables, condensed write-ups and legalistically phrased constitutions give little opportunity for varied layout or novel treatment, the "Freshman Bible" long had traditional format and static contents. The producers of the 1935 edition, however, made important typographical changes, and Editor Williams continued this trend to some extent. The booklet was widened one-half inch, a new cover designed, and faculty section arrangement revised.

Certain sections, like preface and "Who's Who Catalogue," because they change yearly, are particularly interesting. This season the President's welcome advised newcomers to put much into college to get much out, while the campus leaders list contained names of over two hundred outstanding undergraduates.

HANDBOOK

Aided by Field Director Joseph Rock, who conducted several enlightening inspection tours of Bristol Airport, Flying Club members gained much practical aeronautical knowledge during autumn's ideally clear aviation days. However, when winter curtailed this excellent instruction program, aero interest diminished so greatly that the Student Life Committee's May order abolishing the organization met only whispered protest.

Bi-monthly lectures—some entertaining, others technical—also featured first semester activities. Professors Freeman and Heinrichs, faculty advisers of the group, related their experiences with World War “Jennies,” and later, Robert L. Hutchinson '37 acted as commentator for moving pictures of an Elmira glider meet. Balancing these “adventure talks” were discussions of airplane construction and transport flying by Mr. Rock, and a historical analysis of combustion engines by Henry Perry, petroleum engineer.

Several ambitious plans were left incomplete by the organization's sudden demise.

FLYING CLUB
Abolition of Kappa Phi Kappa and Flying Club, one-year probation for Alchemist and Liberal Clubs, and strict honorary status for "M" Club and Blue Key were decreed by the Student Life Committee after it completed an intensive examination, begun in fall, of extracurricular abuses and reforms. Foreshadowing later action, the committee in November voted against recognizing the Radio Group, although the Independent Association, another organization new last autumn, was sanctioned.

Following a Student Council report and agitation for a less complicated extracurricular system, the committee studied campus organizations as to objectives, accomplishments, and student interest. The dissolutions and trial periods resulted from weakness in the last classification, while the honor societies lost functions because the Student Council seemed a more logical agent to sponsor gymnasium dances, buy athletic sweaters, and sell freshman rules and caps.

Exceptionally active recently, the Student Life Committee long has been supreme judge over birth, existence and death of all social, athletic and extracurricular activities. Representing faculty and undergraduates, the group enforces rulings of both administration and student body.
Contrasting with past lethargy, the Student Council this season was so active in reforming extra-curricular organization and student election procedure that it amassed widespread new functions. Freshman caps and rules, gymnasium dances, and “M” sweaters came under its direct supervision following Student Life action on recommendations of a Council committee appointed in November. Enforcement of revolutionized voting rules against fraternity politics and minority choices became another duty.

Legislation establishing preferential voting, general election day, revised nominating committees, and punitive measures against “combines,” was the most far-reaching Student Council accomplishment in years. Tested this May, the plan completely eliminated “fixed” balloting and brought out an eighty percent vote. Council members acted as official poll clerks.

Constitutions of the Independent Association and Radio Group were approved at a November meeting, although the latter later was refused Student Life sanction.
After Bands Enliven Football Spirit,

Band activities, except for traditional engagements during Junior and Senior Weeks, were connected exclusively with autumn's numerous holidays, rallies, and athletic struggles. At Middlebury Night and frequent game-eve "pep meetings" the thirty-five musicians exhilarated flagging school spirit with marches and college songs.

Making music for every home pigskin contest as well as at Norwich and R. P. I., the band, under new leadership this year, contributed greatly to the Panther's perfect record. An Armistice Day performance and a joint Middlebury-Vermont playing and formation program were season highlights.
Orchestra Maintains Musical Interest!

Director and accompanist Harold Frantz, Evelyn B. Adiance '38

Featuring classics by Beethoven, Greig and Haydn, the college orchestra’s annual debut was held December 6. Preceded by intensive weekly rehearsals throughout October and November, the presentation was so well received that in spring two others were given, an orthodox concert April 12 and a combined orchestra-choir program two weeks later.

Under new directorship, the organization this season had forty-two members, several more than in previous years. The activity, open to all students playing musical instruments who wish practical orchestral experience, contained only three non-undergraduates.
Aroma of roasting meats and echoes of lusty folksongs floated down from Chipman one October twilight, as the French Club, fifty members strong, introduced its 1936-37 season with the annual autumn bacon bat. Exceptionally successful with this initial undertaking, the organization carried out an unusually ambitious program, featuring lectures, parties and dramatic skits.

Besides scheduled monthly meetings, two special entertainments for the general student body were sponsored. "Maria Chapdelaine," French talking film of the Canadian frontier, was presented at the Opera House in November, while during April, Dr. André Philip, member of the Chamber of Deputies, discussed European militarism. The annual French Club formal also was open to invited non-members.

Several Punch and Judy shows, a comedy by G. D'Hervilliez, Breton folk dances directed by Valeria E. Halligan '38, and short plays by the various classes and faculty members were among the regular presentations, given in the Château's Grand Salon. Christmas activities included the customary pre-vacation carol singing at dormitories and faculty homes.
Severe penalties against overpledging and a huge entering class, coupled with ever-present suspicion of discrimination against non-fraternity men, made last autumn ideal for organizing the numerous but inarticulate neutrals into a formal society. Hence, October agitation of a group headed by Frank E. Hobson '38 soon brought formation of the Independent Association.

Founded "to insure non-fraternity men advantages provided by student government, social activities, and intramural competition," the organization at first contained only an upperclass nucleus. After rushing, however, its size trebled from influx of freshman neutrals. Maintaining low dues and open membership policy, the group determined to work for a cooperative house but never to "go fraternity." Professors Bowker, Brown and Bryant were faculty advisers.

Producing Middlebury’s first perfect season, the 1936 Panther eleven amassed 127 points against opponents’ 21, to join autumn’s thirteen unbeaten, untied teams. With passes, end-sweeps, and off-tackle slants as scoring punches, the offensive, built around glue-fingered ends and speedy backfield, featured deception, not power. Heavy linemen, whose pay-dirt stands and punt blocking won opening encounters, made the defense a stumbling block.

Although inexperienced as a unit, the grid team, practically rebuilt because of graduation losses, revealed intermittent backfield brilliance, determined line play, and fighting spirit during opening 7-0 and 6-0 wins over Union and Colby. In both battles, however, the Middmen, exhibiting no offensive or kicking superiority, won only by outstanding tackle and end play. At Schenectady, Craig, right wing, blocked a fourth-quarter punt which Kirk claimed for the touchdown, while at Colby, Seixas grabbed Rancourt’s quick kick and tallied.

Only twice were the Panthers “off form.” Playing injury-weakened Norwich, the Beckmen were dogged by fumbles and line weakness. After Guarnaccia scored early on a reverse, the Cadets dominated, finally cracking Middlebury’s hitherto impenetrable goal on Hatfield’s end sweep. Not until the last minutes, when Boehm and VanDoren made it 13-6, did the Middmen click.
Beginning badly, Middlebury conquered R. P. I. 13-0 by second-half aerials and an interception. Threatening constantly, the Panthers could not crush Engineer resistance till Kirk grabbed Chalmers' end-zone forward. After several marches, Kirk, snaring a surprise R. P. I. pass, scored again.

Against Coast Guard and Ithaca, Panther offensive ran rampant. Aerials to Craig and Kirk accomplished the first anti-Guardsmen touchdown, while a 60-yard march through opposition tackles, culminating in VandenDoren's delayed line buck, made it 12-0. Four touchdowns, two on passes and others on center rushes, plus Anderson's conversions, brought 27-7 triumph over Ithaca.

Conquests of St. Lawrence and Vermont, season's standout opponents, revealed peak teamwork. Behind 8-0 at half-time, Middlebury took advantage of Larrie penalties with aerials that scored Kirk and Craig; off-tackle crashes by Liljenstein and Guarnaccia also contributed to the 19-8 win. Perfect finale was Vermont's 20-0 defeat, effected by Middlebury's running attack, Boehm and Chalmers scoring, and by a 40-yard pass to Kirk.
Scorebooks record that last autumn’s varsity cross-country team experienced only defeats, five disastrous ones. They fail to state, however, that the schedule was exceptionally severe, that fighting spirit was always present.

Following a perfect-score defeat by Union, Middlebury placed Brooker and Richardson in a third-place tie against Williams. At R. P. I. the latter took second, while against Dartmouth and Vermont he made the only Panther tallies. Though 188 demerits to opponents’ microscopic 81 made an undeniably poor season, a capable nucleus for the 1937 squad resulted.
In their season's only competition, the freshman harriers were nosed out, 23-32, by Vermont yearlings. Running the three and a half mile course under wintry conditions, the frosh showed plenty of power in garnering first and fourth places.

Varsity material was uncovered when Post, after trailing Peterson of Vermont throughout the grind, sprinted fifty yards to victory in 19:40, record-equalling time. Devinne of the Lakesiders was third, followed by Cushman of Middlebury. Three more Kittens placed before the Blue and White trio of Ellmers, Seymour and McMahon earned eighth, ninth and tenth positions respectively.

Superiority in aerials, punting and line defense gave Middlebury’s freshman gridsters victories over Williams, Norwich and Vermont. Under their new mentor, John E. Nash, the Cubs, paced by Stabile’s tackling, Schragle’s pass-snaring, and Mahoney’s broken-field work, totaled 44 points against five opponents’ 33.

After but two weeks’ practice, the yearlings outfought Union for three periods, only to have Coach Nelson’s proteges win 7-0 after recovering fumbled center-pass near goal. The next Saturday against Williams, however, the score was reversed, when Profy, Panther guard, eluding the entire Purple team, tallied on the opening kick-off.

Defensive work by Cahn and Stabile featured both contests, while the blocking of Matulis and Quackenbush paved the way for many backfield gains.
Excepting two surprise thrusts that netted twelve points, Kimball Union had little advantage over the scoreless Nashmen. The latter were gaining steadily on punt exchanges till the Meridan safety man counted with a 40-yard kick return. The second tally followed enemy recovery of a Panther goal-line fumble.

State championship for freshman teams went to the Middmen through 20-7 and 13-7 victories over Norwich and Vermont respectively. Against the Cadets, Jaques counted on a pass interception, Mahoney on an 80-yard punt runback, and Schragle on a last-minute forward.

The Lakesiders proved tough opponents, tying the count at 7-all with a buck by Beauchemin, after a second-quarter pass, Mahoney to Schragle, had given the Panthers an early lead. Middlebury aerials finally succeeded, however, when Schragle scored again late in the last period.
Most important Student Council action this season transferred regulatory powers over intramural athletics to student supervisors, two managers and two assistants. Several managership elections were decided by the organization.

The Council represents faculty, alumni and undergraduates. Since major sports captains and minor sports heads in season are student members, the group every fall has slightly different personnel.

Middlebury's general athletic policies are formulated by the Council. It can award sports' insignias, remove managers or captains, determine rules for conducting local intercollegiate competitions. The Director of Athletics, who executes sport rulings and manages finances for games, is a Council officer.

Flood relief contributions, classes in social and modern dancing, and participation in Skidmore's co-ed ski carnival were unusual activities supervised by the W. A. A. Council this year.

The Council, which acts as executive board for the Women's Athletic Association, sponsored the customary intraclass tournaments.

Winter sports, under direction of Margaret W. Scherholz '37, aroused exceptional enthusiasm. The Council awarded the usual insignias—numerals to class championship team members, "MC" monograms to all-Midd women, and W. A. A. jackets to 1,000-point winners.

SECTION III

OF A YEAR AT MIDDLEBURY
SNOW-COVERED hay stacks, black leafless trees, and gray lifeless sky are aftermaths of December's first storm. Soon come deep drifts, frozen ponds, and chill starlit nights. On sparkling, unbroken slopes long, curving ski trails begin to work grotesque, crisscross patterns.

As the landscapes change to mid-Winter's all-prevailing whiteness from late Fall's drab brown so does the college life for which these moods of Nature weave both background and "raison d'être." Some students, disliking bleak cold, turn to routine study, social life, or club activities. Others, sensing pure snow's invigorating beauty, know the thrill of downhill plunges on well-waxed skis, of solo dashes on flashing skates. Indeed, enough undergraduate events are intimately connected with Winter months to form another separate chapter in this pictorial record of a Middlebury year.

DRAMATICS

SEASON ACTIVITIES

Well-balanced variety characterized Playhouse activity this year. Producing a Restoration comedy, “Gay Nineties” melodrama, and post-war sociological study with equal finesse, the department revealed again its talents for correct casting, “behind-the-scenes” details, and even dialogue tempo. Construction of a basement lounge was a special undertaking.

Three major plays were given under Professor Goodred’s direction. “Girls in Uniform,” with an all-female cast, dramatized personality preversions caused by a tyrannically strict German boarding school, while “Gold in the Hills,” enlivened by entr’acte singing, was the typical story of city slicker, innocent beauty, and homespun hero.

Three sets of one-act dramatizations were given. From O’Neill’s Glencairn Cycle of tramp steamer life came two all-male selections, presented Thanksgiving night. Student-directed experimentalists comprised the other programs.

Drastic membership restrictions, widespread constitutional revisions, and redefinition of purposes completely remade the Liberal Club this year. In February, inactive members were dropped and a four-man committee was appointed to investigate possibilities of unifying with Women’s Forum. Later, a new constitution, emphasizing club’s discussion group capacity, was adopted; it embodied many suggestions made by Professor Fife, whom Student Life delegated to examine the organization’s difficulties.

National elections received attention from a political forum to which four state parties sent speakers, while United States relations with League of Nations were analyzed by Dr. Moritz J. Bonn, German economist. Major speaker was Dr. Payson Smith, Massachusetts-ex-commissioner of education, who discussed “Has Education Failed?”

Elmore Jackson, representative of Quakers’ summer service camps, urged students to spend vacation in this social-work field at a March meeting. Rev. Graydon Brown’s talk on “Christianity and War” was last non-member lecture sponsored by the organization. A round-table discussion of Supreme Court legislation concluded the year’s activities.
Widely spread interest in foreign affairs, revealed by panel discussions and lecture topics at Women’s Forum meetings this year, culminated in February with the group’s affiliation to the International Relations Clubs of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Professor Centeno’s analysis of the Spanish civil war, Professor Neuse’s description of German civilization under Nazism, and Professor Heinrichs’ account of European travels in Sherwood Eddy’s party were indicative of subjects usually discussed.

Basil Mathews, English world-problem expert, was the best known speaker sponsored by the organization; his topic was “Democracy in a Changing World.” Dr. Moritz I. Bonn, widely praised in academic economic circles, lectured to the group on European financial difficulties.

Domestic questions were considered in an informal forum on “The Good and Bad in Roosevelt”; the discussion was led by Professors Fife, Prentice and Rusby. Further support was given the peace movement, when twenty-five dollars were voted to students attending American Friends’ work camps this summer.
English Club meetings last winter featured talks by Middlebury faculty members. John Saxe, well-known Vermont poet, was discussed by Dr. Douglas S. Beers, while "The Anatomy of Melancholy in Poetry" was Prof. Richard L. Brown's topic. The effect of conventions on music, painting and other arts was analyzed by Prof. H. Goddard Owen.

Following admission of thirteen new members soon after college opened, the organization began a series of monthly meetings at President Moody's residence. During the fall, Professor Burrage lectured on Greek comedy and Professor Freeman on "A Gastronomic Tour of France." Besides the regular gatherings, many members attended the English Major meetings at which Professors Andrews, Cook, Tupper of U. V. M., and others were speakers.

Last talk this year was delivered by Miss Rose E. Martin of the Spanish department; discussing Goya as the "painter of rebellion," she showed how his canvasses interpreted Spanish character. Club membership was restricted to forty undergraduate men and women, selected for outstanding accomplishments in English, as revealed by extra-curricular activities and academic standing.

Twilight musicales, informal discussions of various modern composers, a special benefit card party, and an initiatory picnic were important A Tempo Club activities this season. Composed of junior and senior girls having practical and theoretical musical knowledge, the organization, which holds frequent meetings, especially during winter months, aims to further appreciation of classical compositions.

Nine student and faculty recitals were arranged by Jane Liddle '38, directress of the traditional Friday afternoon musicales; programs on organ, violin, flute, piano, and zylophone were among those presented. McDowell, Debussy, Brahms, and several ultra-modern composers were topics of a lecture series prepared by Katherine R. Stackel '37. Piano and song compositions of musicians discussed were presented by various members to illustrate varying techniques and characteristics.

One hundred students and faculty wives attended the bridge musicale held in Forest Hall; proceeds went towards founding a music scholarship. Season's final social event was a picnic supper for thirteen new members elected this spring. Ruth E. Flicker '38 was chosen president for the 1937-38 season at the annual elections in April.

New England and New York State were territories covered by Glee Club's two major tours this winter. In April the single home concert was presented. Classics, college songs and sea chanties featured repertoire of the thirty-man organization.

Broadcasts at Boston, Schenectady, Elmira and Syracuse were outstanding events. Appearance at Middlebury alumni banquet in Boston climaxed February tour, while two-day stand at Elmira was second trip's finale.

Four unusual programs marked choir activities this year. The traditional candlelight Christmas service included European carols and Handel's "Messiah," while the Easter concert dealt musically with the Crucifixion, Resurrection and Triumph. In conjunction with college orchestra, a special recital was given during convention of American Organists' Guild.

The oratorio "Elijah" was presented by the Choral Society, an organization formed this year, that contains many choir members as well as non-student singers. Choir's standout social event was the annual party at Moody's to which all forty-two members went for an informal evening songfest.
Record of the 1936-37 debating season was eight wins, six losses, and four non-decisions. With Darrow, Pickard, Leggett and Onion forming a first-string quartet, Coach Perkins' team succeeded against Vermont and other important opponents. Radio encounters at Schenectady and Boston featured the schedule, half of which was concentrated in winter.

Particularly fruitful were the arguments for maximum hour-minimum wage legislation. Dartmouth, Boston University, Clark, Manhattan and Princeton met defeat on the proposition, while Brown and Hobart were only teams successfully contradicting Middlebury's points. The question was also topic of a non-decision contest with Colby.

Consumers' cooperatives were topic of debates. Upholding their extension, Middlebury lost to Union, defeated M. I. T. Taking the negative, the team lost to Hamilton and faced Harvard in a non-decision encounter. McGill was another victim, but Yale and Williams vanquished the Middmen. Bates and representatives of the British Student Union were met in non-decision contests.

One round-table, five decision, and seven non-decision discussions comprised the women debaters' schedule this year. Outstanding event of season was December trip to four southern New England colleges. With Misses Bloom, Knox and Kingsley as reliable “standbys”, Professor Perkins coached his squad to four triumphs.

Governmental ownership of public utilities was the proposition in six contests. Middlebury's negative arguments defeated Boston University and Rhode Island State, but were checkmated by a Pembroke duo. The same question was debated in non-decision affairs against Bates, Radcliffe and Keene Normal School.

After mid-term the team switched to the maximum hours-minimum wages resolution. William and Mary fell before affirmative arguments, while later St. Lawrence was defeated by negative. During New York-New Jersey trip, same question was used in non-decision debates with Upsala and New York University. Skidmore, Vermont and New York State Teachers' were other opponents.

WOMEN DEBATERS HOLD CONFERENCE WITH COACH

WOMEN'S DEBATING TEAM
Spirited German carols on a frosty December dawn, this year as previously, forewarned a sleeping campus of Christmas. Indeed, these annual songs have become so traditionally important that they comprised the German Club's feature activity during the 1936-37 season. Sixty students practiced two weeks for the matinal tour of dormitories and faculty homes which ended with a coffee-and-doughnut breakfast at the Moody's.

Formed to further understanding of German culture, the club heard several lectures on that nation's customs and peoples. Hans W. Roepke '37, exchange student, contrasted college life in Germany and America, Prof. Everett Skillings described the Black Forest, and Professor Neuse discussed various peculiarities of German civilization. A musical program entertained at one meeting and motion pictures at another.

Several constitutional revisions were considered this year, most important being establishment of program chairmanship to insure better organized entertainments. Besides regular meetings, die Kleine Gruppe, small band of advanced German students, gathered frequently at Professor Skillings' home for games and singing.
Three annual events marked high spots in Spanish Club activities this year—first-meeting supper, Christmas celebration, and fiesta dance. Lectures and entertainments by both faculty members and undergraduates were featured at the regular meetings, held monthly to further understanding of Spain’s civilization. Next season’s officers were selected during early March.

Fifty members attended the October banquet, arranged by Miss Rose E. Martin, while a huge crowd heard Cleve Fyles’ orchestra at the semi-formal Fiesta directed by Janet E. Randall ’38. As usual, the club celebrated Christmas January 6, in accordance with the native Spanish custom. Prof. Juan A. Centeno, who discussed orientalism in Spain, and Miss Martin, who analyzed the paintings and personality of Goya, were among the outstanding speakers of the year.

Well received were two skits directed by Margaret W. Scherholz ’37, and a program dealing with Spanish composers. Informal talks, accompanied by illustrative vocal and instrumental music, featured the latter. At another meeting, the picaresque novel was subject of a discussion led by Doris E. Heald ’37.

SEASON

Speed, skill and spirit, not power and practice, brought Middlebury puckmen five victories from a stiff, nine-contest schedule. The offense, checkmated by only Dartmouth, Colgate and Army, featured solo dashes and fast-breaking passes, while individual fight, not bulk and set planning, was basic defense.

With veterans Phinney, Manchester, Robinson and Cullins as nucleus, the light, shifty six vanquished Union, Massachusetts State and New Hampshire before tasting defeat. Despite poor training weather and equipment, Coach Nash, new mentor, had developed a sextet especially capable at capitalizing surprise breaks.

Lightning-like attacks downed Massachusetts State, 7-5, and Duke Nelson's Union, 5-4. Against the New Yorkers, solos by Phinney and Cullins brought first tallies, while a Manchester-Cullins pass led to winning score after Garnet had tied count on Haley's spectacular blue-line shot. The Massachusetts aggregation was defeated by Wyman's assist work and Farrell's net-shooting accuracy.

Brilliant defense featured the Panthers' 2-0 win over Hamilton and 2-1 defeat of New Hampshire. After Wyman's assist to Farrell and Phinney's long, single-handed dash gained two-point lead at Clinton, goalie Robinson repelled violent enemy rushes with near-impossible saves. At Durham, Westin and Cairns checked New Hampshire charges repeatedly.

Losing to Dartmouth, 3-1, Middlebury made finest fight. Superior in skating and defensive tactics, the Panthers were beaten by Big Green’s powerful offensive and flock of penalties. After Cairns knotted count at three-all in third period, Nashmen played inspired hockey, checking further Hanoverian scores till referee reduced their playing force to four.

Soft ice slowed down stickmen’s attack in two close battles. From poor-skating Fitchburg the Middmen could get nothing better than 1-1 tie; following Westin’s tally for Panthers and Godick’s for Teachers in abbreviated cantos, the contest was called. The alumni game proved somewhat more exciting, with varsity winning 3-2 in overtime, after Cairn’s fast shot from center ice had counted.

Two opponents proved slightly too much for the Panthers. Although scoring efforts of Wyman and Phinney, and defense work of Cairns and Robinson held Colgate to tie until last frame, Red Raiders’ superior attack and condition finally enabled Riley to count twice, making totals 4-2. In season’s last encounter, the Middmen went down 3-0 when, playing on exceptionally large rink, they found Army’s airtight defense unfathomable.

CAPTAIN-ELECT KENT
Panther skiers this year ranked well in two meets, taking third at Middlebury’s Carnival and sixth at St. Margaret’s. Despite little snow and crucial injuries, Coach Hubbard, new mentor, welded a talented though inexperienced team around veterans Harvi, Robinson and Kent.

Though four encounters were cancelled, the squad trained vigorously. Cole, Fairchild and Seymour, who had prep school experience, developed into capable four-event skiers, while Carter, a transfer, showed good jumping form. Goodel, another promising yearling, was eliminated by a knee injury.

Though trailing New Hampshire and Dartmouth, Middlebury led five opponents at home meet. Panthers counted on all-around, average ability, not individual brilliance. Surprising even themselves, they won jumping event on form despite short leaps, though Adams of Williams took individual honors.

Seymour, Fairchild and Kent placed high in slalom, downhill, and cross-country, Carter in jumping. Cole turned in good general performance. Since each team-member entered every event, capture of "show" position was much due to Middleburian's excellent condition.

The Middmen took third in combined event also. Unavoidable absence of Harvi and Kent was a severe drawback, but fine showing of freshman trio made next season's prospects look quite bright.

At St. Margaret's, Canada, Middlebury took sixth place. Twelve colleges participated in the meet, which was won by Dartmouth. The Blue and White representatives were Carter, Cole, Fairchild, Kent, Robinson and Seymour.

Four Middmen finished the blizzard-blown, fourteen-mile cross-country race, Cole being first. Robinson starred in the slalom, while he and Fairchild did well on the huge jump, made treacherous by coating of glare ice.

BASKETBALL
SEASON

Constant improvement was dominant characteristic of Middlebury basketball this season. Though disorganized by graduation losses and injuries, the Beckmen gradually developed tight man-to-man guard and fast passing-cutting attack. Leading scorers were Anderson, Chalmers and Philipson, while Clonan and Lonergan were defense stalwarts. Trick knees put Lins and VanDoren, shot-making forwards, out of action, but promising yearlings added reserve.

Two disastrous lickings revealed Middlebury’s early weakness. First Union’s shuttle attack throttled Panthers 62-29, despite basket-hanging spurts by Lins, VanDoren and Anderson. Then Williams, led by high-scorer Stanley, won 34-15, although Beckmen’s defense functioned better.

Amherst, Wesleyan and Springfield also triumphed despite intermittent rallies by Anderson and Chalmers. Middlebury seemed lethargic till second periods and even then used mostly mid-floor shots. Clever defense tactics were not enough coordinated to check these powerful opponents.
Defeating R. P. I. 24-21, Middlebury showed improved foul shooting and steadier play. Against Massachusetts State, too, though edged out 31-26, the Middmen’s opportunistic attack was praiseworthy. Clonan, Philipson and Lonergan were consistent, though not flashy, mainstays. Kirk, substitute guard whose goal helped beat Engineers, was stabilizing influence.

Comparing scores of first and second state-series games gives proof of Panther improvement. Playing in huge Northfield gymnasium, the Middmen took a 31-15 drubbing from Norwich, but later turned tables and won 28-26, Chalmers and Kirk cooperating to push through tying and winning counters.

Swamped 29-41 in first St. Michael’s encounter, Middlebury later fought a see-saw struggle before succumbing 27-32. Vermont, state champion, found Panthers tough to beat 38-27 in their second meeting, although first contest was 41-23 walk-away. Anderson was Beckmen’s sparkplug in both Catamount battles.

SECTION IV

OF A YEAR AT MIDDLEBURY
LAKE DUNMORE'S ice-freed waters and the delicate green of fresh-budded leaves on surrounding mountains properly express the beauty and the mood of Vermont Springtime. All Nature, born anew with youthful spirit, seems joyful, vigorous, and changeful. Showers come and go; flowers flourish; birds return; nights are warm and languid.

Closely aligning itself with these ever re-occurring natural characteristics of Spring, college life becomes even more varied than in Autumn. A long succession of formal dances is climaxed by the intensive merry-making of Junior Week, while final examinations, fast-approaching, lend a serious note. On the sports field, golf, tennis, track and baseball hold sway. To adequately capturing this fast-moving spirit of collegiate activity and recreation during a Middlebury Spring, this final chapter of the 1938 KALEIDOSCOPE dedicates itself.

ORGANIZ

Spring
Major change in Campus editorial organization this year was a plan under which assistant editors rotated in putting out sports page. Several new front-page lay-outs, wide variety of feature stories, and regular columns on athletics, politics, and Middlebury life improved the paper's content and appearance.

Editorials concentrated on local problems. "Hell Week" abolition, interfraternity rushing booklet, general election day, and term bill collection of class dues were advocated, while commercialism of college athletics and scanty Middlebury publicity were criticized.

In October the publication polled student body on its presidential preferences.

Campus Administrations Change Following
Most important Campus business transactions this year were donation of one thousand dollars from reserve to special "library recreational reading room" fund and adoption of $2.50 subscription fee—effective next year—instead of customary $3.00. Further expansion into national advertising field was another major accomplishment.

Enlarged circulation, due primarily to large entering class increased distribution problem, and late this spring a new press room had to be arranged. Larger advertising volume than ever before and continued contact with Associated College Press, distributors of the rotogravure "Collegiate Digest," were other policies.

Elections in Mid-March!

"HUMPHY" and two assistant editors making last-minute corrections
Adoption of constitutional amendments which completely revolutionized electoral procedure of the men's college was Undergraduate Association's most important accomplishment this year. At the organization's elections, held late in May, preferential voting system, "combine" punishment plan, and printed ballots were used for the first time. The regulations designated the Student Council, Association's executive body, as polling authority.

The new rulings proposed during April by the Council also provided, in conjunction with the ten-point class balloting reforms, the first general election day in the college's history. Such interest was created by the discussions and three association meetings necessary to pass the amendments, that nearly eighty percent of eligible voters participated in this comprehensive balloting.

The organization, containing every undergraduate of men's college, ratifies important decisions of Student and Athletic Councils. Through the former it this year approved constitutions of two new campus groups, Independent Association and Radio Club, although latter of these failed to obtain Student Life approval. Majority vote of the association suffices to remove retainer of any undergraduate office.

Sponsoring numerous teas was major special activity of the Student Union this year. Regular legislative, judicial and executive functions ran smoothly, with no fundamental changes being made in system established by constitution adopted only two years ago. Most important organizational innovation was rule providing that, at each general meeting, chief justice should give reports on all cases brought before Judicial Council.

The Social Committee, which controls social activities of women's college, was particularly active. Composed of both faculty and student representatives, it arranged teas for freshmen at professors' homes. Besides these, it sponsored numerous demi-tasses and teas.

All women registered as students automatically become members of the Union which is self-governing body of the women's college. The directorial board is divided into three groups: Executive Council, consisting of the four officers; a Legislative Council, in which all organizations having women members are represented; a Judicial Council, headed by chief justice.

TWO PRESIDENTS LOOK OVER CONSTITUTION

STUDENT UNION
Twenty-seven upperclassmen were tapped at a chapel service late this spring—six seniors, seventeen juniors, and four sophomores. The exceptionally large junior representation carried out one of numerous minor policy changes adopted at behest of Student Life Committee. According to the latter, Blue Key is to be “a junior honorary society, containing a few outstanding seniors and sophomores.”

In assuming a purely honorary status, the organization gave up many petty, extraneous functions which it had accumulated over a period of years. The sale of freshman rules, caps and toques, and purchase of awards for championship teams were transferred to Student Council, while the unauthorized, but important, custom of enforcing freshman traditions was completely dropped.

Members of the society are chosen mainly on basis of extra-curricular activity, college spirit, and character, but there are no set requirements as is the case with Waubanakee, other men’s honorary organization. Tiny blue pin in shape of key, and soft navy blue hat are insignias of the group which was founded in 1930 by uniting “Sages” and “Delta Tau.”

"M" Club was another society effected by the Student Life Committee’s April extra-curricular reorganization program. The group’s chief non-honorary functions, purchase of "M" sweaters and sponsoring of gymnasium informal dances, were transferred to the Student Council, while the committee also made several recommendations aimed at preventing duplication of membership between this society and Blue Key.

As now constituted, "M" Club exists solely to honor wearers of the major "M," those undergraduate or alumni men who have won letters in football, baseball, hockey, basketball or track. Its primary purpose is fostering recognition of Middlebury’s athletic accomplishments. The president of the organization, which was founded in 1926, is a member of the Student Council.

This fall the club sponsored the customary Saturday night gym informals, but failed to make enough to cover the cost of "M" sweaters and letters—one of the factors which caused elimination of these functions. Election of officers, held at a meeting late in May, resulted in Milton K. Lins '38 selection as president for the 1937-38 season.

Seven junior women, considered outstanding in both scholarship and extra-curricular abilities, were tapped by Mortar Board at a special Student Union meeting in April. This ceremony climaxed a year in which the local, Banshee, chapter of the national honorary senior society, was active in sponsoring special picnics and teas.

To promote high scholarship, the organization held several honorary luncheons for lower-classmen with dean's list ratings. Early in October, its annual Bread Loaf outing, to help freshmen and transfers become acquainted with Middlebury's traditions, was organized; following a picnic supper, the one hundred and twenty women present saw the Mortar Board pageant. At Thanksgiving and Christmas, the society distributed food and clothing.

To further its purpose of "securing cooperation between the women's organizations, promoting college loyalty, and stimulating a finer type of college woman, Mortar Board annually gives a cup to that sophomore woman most representative of her class. This year Marjorie A. Kohr '39 was the recipient."
Waubanakee tapped during Junior Week, picking only two juniors as "papoosees" of society which represents highest undergraduate honorary award. This was final act of five campus leaders who comprised the organization during 1936-37 season. It ended a year which saw further growth in society's two-year trend towards service, rather than purely honorary, character.

Outstanding accomplishment was adoption of new constitution which seeks to make the society an agent for closer cooperation between administration and undergraduates. Other activity was directed mainly at organizing pre-game football rallies. Faculty speakers were obtained and special programs arranged; the homecoming rally, featuring huge bonfires and torchlight march to Porter field, was most successful of these.

The society, which was founded in 1911, is self-perpetuating. Character, scholarship, personality, leadership, and extra-curricular activity are among factors considered in choosing "papoosees." Though next year's membership represents ultra degree of exclusiveness, Waubanakee has always been exceedingly small. Insignias of the organization are a gold tomahawk pin and a black hat with an embroidered tomahawk on the front.

TWO-MILE AT EASTERNs
SEASON, 1936

Outstanding individual records and substantial team victories marked 1936 track season. Conquering Williams, Vermont and Norwich, Brownmen fell before Wesleyan because of weakness in field events. Record-breaking performances by MacFadyen and Foster gained strong fourth at Easterns.

Opening meets revealed Middlebury's strength lay in running events. Against Wesleyan, which nosed out Brownmen 69% to 63%, MacLean, MacFadyen, Williams and King scored eight points apiece; broad jump and hammer throw were Panther's weak points. Much improvement was revealed following Saturday by Middmen's 74-61 defeat of Williams.

Next two meets were featured by individual brilliance, but not team victories. While M. I. T. was crushing Brownmen 81-54, Cridland established college hammer throw record, Williams swept dash events, and MacLean conquered Johnson, highly touted Tech hurdler. In Easterns, MacFadyen chopped two seconds off conference and three seconds off college marks with 1:56.8 half, and Foster, pulling up from sixth spot, recorded 50.2 quarter.

Middmen won state championship, swamping Vermont, 90% to 44½, and annihilating Norwich, 117½ to 17½. Williams, MacFadyen and MacLean scored double victories against Lakesiders, but Panthers met heavier going in field, where Catamounts' Ross and Trudeau scored wins. Against Cadets, Middlebury took all firsts.
SEASON, 1937

Middlebury's 1937 trackmen were powerful on cinders but weak elsewhere. Williams and MacFadyen were consistent point-winners, while yearlings, like Quackenbush, Post and Cushman, added strength. Cridland in hammer, Guarnaccia in broad jump, Hoffmann in vault and Riccio in shot were bright spots among mediocre field performers.

Defeats opened season. Wesleyan won 92-43, with only Williams, Cushman, Cridland scoring clear Panther victories; MacFadyen, half-mile ace, lost. Against Williams, victorious 75½-59½, Middmen did well in dashes and medium distances, but failed in field, excepting vault and javelin.

In intercollegiate meets, Panthers did fair. At New Englands, Williams captured third and Guarnaccia starred in trials, while Middmen captured fourth spot in Easterns through firsts by Williams, MacFadyen and Guarnaccia, and other points from Cridland, Rathbone, Riccio, and Cushman.

Against B. U., Middlebury showed power, winning 69½-65½; Williams took three firsts, while freshman Kaufman clinched meet on final javelin toss. Nosed out 66½-68½ by Catamounts, Middlebury with Guarnaccia breaking broad jump record and Williams scoring thirteen points, made stiff fight.

Panther golfers in 1936 won three, lost three. Defeating Bowdoin 5-1 and Nassau 6-0, they revealed well-balanced brilliance, Leete, Neilson and Johnson starring. On trip, however, they were swamped by Union 6-0 and Colgate 5-1, but Garnet defeat was neutralized by 8-1 win here.

This spring record was one win, one tie, three losses. On own course, links- men fought powerful Union to 3-3 score and swamped St. Lawrence 6-0.

SEASON, 1936

Coach Nelson's 1936 nine fielded well but hit weakly. Hampered by graduation losses and practice conditions, club packed batting power in Kirk, Nash and Hoehn, while Meacham, Lins and Phinney were defense stars. Collapse of Guild's pitching arm caused many defeats, but brought development of talented yearling twirling crew.

Insufficient practice caused beatings from Colgate and Williams, while mediocre stickwork nullified fine fielding in Springfield contest. Opposition errors and a hitting streak gave Middlebury victory 10-8 against American International, 8-7 over Army, 5-3 against Lowell Textile, while poor base running cost them William and Mary encounter.

In state conference series, Middmen won only once, defeating St. Michael's 4-1 in raggedly fielded encounter. Vermont's slight edge in batting punch gave Catamounts two narrow victories, while "Doc" Comi, Norwich ace, twice held the Panthers sufficiently at bay for his teammates to triumph.
SEASON, 1937

Weakness in pitching and fielding departments spelled downfall for Middlebury's hard-hitting, fighting baseball team this spring. Infield errors cost many runs, and liberality with bases on balls others. Lins, Anderson and Kirk were powerful on offense, while yearlings Mahoney and Jaques were quite steady.

Four disastrous defeats started season, Middlebury succumbing to Union, Long Island, Lehigh and Rutgers. Thereafter Panthers improved, giving St. Michael's bitter struggle and bowing to Williams 5-1 only because batters had off-day. With Kingsley doing fine twirling job, the Middmen tasted first victory, shutting out R. P. I., 9-0.

Next four encounters were close, Middlebury edging Hamilton 3-2 and St. Michael's 4-3, behind fine pitching by Kingsley and Gustafson, but succumbing twice to Vermont when Bedell's hurling silenced sluggers. In finale, twirling staff again weakened and Middmen, with several senior stars absent, lost to Norwich 16-1.

GRADUATION
B E H I N D this annual's attempt to convey the changeful, vital spirit of collegiate undergraduate life are craftsmen in twenty or more fields. From designing to press work, the 1938 Kaleidoscope has called for abilities of book-making specialists.

First, there are those who have aided in the taking, compiling and editing of the twelve hundred photographs in this book:

WARREN KAY VANTINE STUDIO, official 1938 Kaleidoscope photographer, whose staff—especially Norman Johnson, Karl Vandukien and Camille D'Angelis—is responsible for high pictorial quality of junior, fraternity and feature sections.

A. W. GOVE and all those connected with his studio, whose patience and artistry have contributed immeasurably to effectiveness of countless informal pictures in class, sorority, athletic and organization sections.

ALMY D. COGGEHALL, whose ceaseless and unselfish work with the candid camera produced many action shots.

Second, come those who have contributed much to the book's designing and plate-making:

DOROTHY C. COOPER and MILTON FITCH of HOWARD-WESSION CO., whose careful attention to a myriad of production problems and details resulted in fine printing-plates.

RUSSELL C. KNIGHT, now of Bickford Engraving Co., whose excellent designing talents helped conceive the opening section layouts and basic ideas of the book.

Third, are the individuals who have assisted in numerous printing problems.

HARRY M. BLODGETT and the whole staff of the FREE PRESS PRINTING CO., whose common sense and knowledge of practical difficulties acted as stabilizing forces throughout whole production phase.

Last but not least are those men who have contributed sound advice along lines of general editorial and financial policy:

DEAN BURT A. HAZELTINE, who gave up much time to the annual's financial problems.

GRADUATION spells the end for that special pattern of existence called college, but it also signifies, as its other highly connotative name suggests, the “commencement” of another broader and more permanent design for living. It opens the doors to participation in the innumerable fields of the business world, marks the beginning of what for many will be the endeavors of a lifetime.

Viewed from this angle, the advertisements with which we close this forty-second volume of the KALEIDOSCOPE take on a far deeper meaning than mere commercial announcements, becoming, indeed, the prevue of many fields with which the outgoing seniors will be connected in their post-graduate years. These pages, then, considered in the double light of glimpses into the future and pronouncements of business enterprises of established quality, are an interesting cross-section of activities in the world outside college, a not inappropriate finale to a book dedicated to recording pictorially a typical college year within college.

Here may be found sidelight on everything from antiques to electricity, from banking to baking, from furs to furniture. Just take a random sample of any advertising page, say page 298, for example, the businesses represented run the whole gauntlet from a hotel to a watch specialist, with hardware, clothing, maple sugar and a restaurant sprinkled in for good measure.

There are always some quaint facts to be garnered from any advertising section, especially one so diversified as this. For instance, we learn here such “Believe-It-or-Not”s as the following: “One penny will pay for two hours of entertainment on radio”; “one dollar a week invested in bank will amount to more than three hundred dollars in four years”; Vermonters have a universal reputation for foresight; university men set the pace for masculine fashion.

To set aside this volume without spending a few moments with the ads would be to miss a vital part of the book. As you go through, follow the story along the top of each page; it aims to give this section more significance than the everyday, haphazardly thrown-together advertising department.

To the high quality of the merchandise advertised herein, the publishers can attest. Those business men represented in this section have shown their realization of the spirit of college youth.

PENNIES are BIG MONEY---

When You Buy Electricity!

A penny looks small to us nowadays, but never before did it buy as much as it does now—if you use it to buy electricity.

A penny’s worth of electricity will furnish you with an abundance of light to read your evening paper; two hours of radio entertainment, or percolate the coffee and toast the bread for the family breakfast.

For a few pennies, electricity will run the refrigerator all day or cook a meal for an average family.

Advance Spring Issue for 1937

"We do not contend that all fashions originate at the smart eastern universities, any more than we say that all fashions which originate in London provide the final guide as to what will sooner or later be worn in this country—There can be no doubt, however, that university men, as a group, do set the fashion pace to an appreciable extent."

A fact which we have recognized for years and which is uppermost in our buyers’ minds when selecting young men’s wear for the approval of our friends and customers.

Buying as we do, from only the best manufacturers, we are assured of good quality and styles which their broad and careful investigations have proven accepted by university centers.
